

Biographies:

Alexey Fominykh graduated from Mari State University with a diploma in History (1996) and he also possesses a Kandidat degree in Political Science from the N.I. Lobachevski State University of Nizhniy Novgorod (2003). His research interests are in the field of public and cultural diplomacy, international education, and international security studies. Since 2004 he has been teaching courses in International Relations at Mari State University. Fominykh is also the Head of the International Office of Mari State University. In 2007 he was a Fulbright Scholar in the United States within the Russian International Education Administrators Program (RIEA). Fominykh is also involved in Russian and international networking projects on the methodology of teaching and research in International Studies, including the OSI funded ReSET project on Central Asia, and the Research and Education Forum on International Relations (“Bogaturov’s School”). alexcom@hotmail.com

Sergei Kruk holds a doctoral degree in Information and Communication Sciences from the Université Paris II – Panthéon-Assas. He teaches discourse analysis and semiotics at Riga Stradiņš University. Currently he is researching the cultural policy of the Soviet Union. He has published articles on visual semiotics and a monograph analysing the state policy of culture and semiotic concepts of music as influenced by Soviet scholars and Communist ideology. sergei.kruk@gmail.com

Simo Mikkonen, PhD is an adjunct professor at the University of Jyväskylä, Finland. His primary research interests include the history of the late Soviet Union, the Cold War and the international relations. Currently he is examining Soviet reactions to western cultural influencing during the Cold War. He has previously published a monograph, State Composers and the Red Courtiers. Music, Ideology and Politics in the Soviet 1930s (New York: Mellen Press, 2009) as well as numerous articles about the cultural Cold War and cultural policies in the Soviet Union, and more recently about U.S.-Soviet relations. He has participated in numerous conferences and was a visiting Fulbright scholar at Stanford University in 2008, exploiting there primarily the extensive RL/RFE corporate archives. simo.mikkonen@jyu.fi

Simona Mihaela Dumitriu is a Teaching Assistant in the Photo-Video Department of the National University of Arts in Bucharest; She is also a PhD candidate at the same institution, and a Fellow at New Europe College in Bucharest. Her research interests include the Archive as instrument and concept in visual culture, Romanian alternative art after the 1960’s, monuments and memory in post-1989 Romania, and image data bases and archives. Dumitriu’s most recent project involves research on the urban and industrial landscapes of post-1989 Romania and the production and management of a digital image and text archive in this area (2007-2010). She worked previously as a guest artist and workshop leader for pRo_Archive, a project aimed at promoting young well-established Romanian artists, curators and theoreticians, and on an NEC project focusing on researching and publishing the history of Romanian art after 1945 (2009-2010). simona_dumitriu@yahoo.fr sdumitriu@nec.ro

Aviezer Tucker’s main research interests are in political theory, the Philosophy of History, and Post-Communist Comparative Politics. He held research positions at the Australian National University, New York University, Columbia University and the Central European University. He edited the recently published Blackwell Companion to the Philosophy of History and Historiography (2009) and authored Our Knowledge of the Past: A Philosophy of Historiography (Cambridge University Press 2004) and The Philosophy and Politics of Czech Dissidence from Patočka to Havel (Pittsburgh University Press 2000) that won honorable mention in the category of first book in Political Theory from the American Political Science Association. He is now working on a book entitled The Legacies of Totalitarianism. avitucker@yahoo.com

Roxana Georgiana Radu is currently enrolled in a 2-year MA program in Political Science at the Central European University, Budapest. She received her BA degree from the University of Bucharest and was an exchange student with the University of Bologna, Italy from 2006-2007. Her international experience includes programs and training in 12 European countries. Her research interests comprise Central and Eastern European politics, and education quality and e-government implementation in the Balkans. Her current research focuses on transitional justice mechanisms in Central and Eastern Europe and their efficiency in settling accounts with the communist past. roxanageorgy@gmail.com

Veronika Tuckerová is a PhD. Candidate in German and Comparative Literature at Columbia University in New York. She is writing her thesis on the reception of Franz Kafka in Czechoslovakia and East and West Germany. She was born in Prague and holds an MA degree in Adult Education from Charles University, an M. Phil. in Comparative Literature from the Graduate Center of the City University of New York and an M. Phil. in German from Columbia University. She has taught at Queens College and Columbia University, this year she is teaching at NYU Prague. Among her academic interests are Modernism, Cold War literature and culture, translation and bilingualism, and exilic writing. vtuckerova@yahoo.com

Timothy William Waters is Associate Professor of Law at Indiana University Maurer School of Law – Bloomington. JD Harvard; MIA Columbia; BA UCLA. He has visited at Boston University, University of Mississippi, Bard College, and Central European University, and held visiting fellowships at Harvard Law School. He has previously worked at the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia, Open Society Institute, Human Rights Watch, and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe. His research focuses on secession and the legal aspects of regulating ethnic conflict, including international criminal law, and his most recent article is The Blessing of Departure: Acceptable and Unacceptable State Support for Demographic Transformation – Exchanging Populated Territories in Cisjordan, 2 LAW & ETHICS OF HUMAN RIGHTS 211 (2008). He regularly contributes commentary to major print and online media, and recently wrote an editorial on the trial of Radovan Karadžić for Foreign Policy. tiwaters@indiana.edu

Hanna Vasilevich is a graduate of the International Relations Faculty of the Belarusian State University and holds an MA in International Relations and Diplomacy from the Anglo-American University in Prague. She is currently a PhD student in the IRES Department of the Metropolitan University in Prague. Vasilevich is working on the thesis “Belarus, Belarusians, and the Quest of National Identity” which is devoted to the analysis of the development of the national identity of Belarusians in the context of the CEE region from 1991 when Belarus became an independent state until the present. Her general research focuses on nationalism and national identity issues in CEE countries with a particular focus on Belarus, Ukraine and Lithuania. She is also the Head of the Academic Activities Department of the Central European Journal of International and Security Studies (CEJISS), an academic journal designed to be a bridge between Central European international relations and security perspectives with other regions. Additionally, she is an assistant editor of the Belarusian Review, a quarterly devoted to Belarusian problematics. sloniejka@gmail.com

Mišo Dokmanović earned his bachelor degree in International Law from the Faculty of Law in Skopje. He holds an LL.M degree from the same faculty and an MA degree in Contemporary Diplomacy from the University of Malta. He completed the writing of his PhD thesis “State and Legal Development of Macedonia in the Yugoslav Federation in the period from 1946-1953” in July 2009. Since 2005, Mišo has been working as a Teaching Assistant in the Faculty of Law in Skopje. He has worked for several foreign institutions including Diplo Foundation, Switzerland, Bearing Point LLC., the SEE Security Forum and WUS, Austria. Mišo has participated in seminars, conferences and longer study visits in over 30 countries. He was a Summer Research Associate at the Centre for Russia and Eastern Europe, University of Illinois. In January 2008 he attended the Holocaust Studies Program at Yad Vashem Centre in Jerusalem. Mišo is a member of the British Association of International Studies and the British 21st Century Trust. He is also the President of the Institute for Strategic Research and Education (ISIE) and Vice President of the Macedonian Alumni Club of The Fund for American Studies. midok@lawyer.com

Paulina Bren is Adjunct Assistant Professor of History at Vassar College (New York) and a 2009–2010 Senior Fellow at the Collegium Budapest Institute for Advanced Study. She has written many articles on the postwar period in Czechoslovakia and the Eastern Bloc. Her book, The Greengrocer and His TV: The Culture of Communism after the 1968 Prague Spring, will be published by Cornell University Press in January of 2010. She is now working on a co-edited volume entitled Consuming Communism: Consumption in Postwar Eastern Europe. Her other two current research projects focus on the anomalous Slušovice Agricultural Cooperative and on a new history of the notorious Field family.

Ioana Macrea-Toma holds a PhD in Comparative Literature from the University Babeş-Bolyai and Université d'Artois, France, and an MA in History at CEU. As a postdoctoral fellow at the Open Society Archives (2008-2009) and at New Europe College, Bucharest (2009-2010), she is currently working on a project on Radio Free Europe, with broader interests in Cold War Cultural history, the sociology of intellectuals and the history of ideas. ioanamacreatoma@yahoo.fr

Catherine Samary, Doctor in Economics, professor at the Université Paris-Dauphine, associated with the Institut d'Etudes Européennes (Université Paris 8). Main field of research: systemic changes and globalization and the Yugoslav and East-European transformations before and after 1989. Recent publications: "Yougoslavie: de la décomposition aux enjeux européens", Ed. du Cygne, 2008 ; and co-direction of the Atlas 2009 edited by Le Monde Diplomatique. Catherine.SAMARY@dauphine.fr, <http://csamary.free.fr>

Gabriel Andreescu is an Associate Prof. Dr. at the Faculty of Political Sciences/SNSPA, Bucharest. Since 2003 he is a Member of the Scientific Council of the National Institute for the Memory of Romanian Exile and from 2005-present is Editor of "Noua Revistă de Drepturile Omului". He is member of the Advisory Council, the Writer's Union and founder of numerous Romanian associations and foundations. Andreescu's civic-political activity during the communist regime include: hunger strike as a protest against the continuing violation of human rights in Romania (1989 – June); protest letters published in the Western mass-media (1988-1989); arrested for anticommunist activity (December 1987-January 1988). His publications include 21 books, and approximately 80 studies and 1.000 articles; Among 13 awards are the following: the Roma National Agency Award (2007); Award of the National Council for Combating Discrimination; National Order "Steaua României" (2000), Cavalier (from the Romanian President); Pro Amicitia (second time, from the Hungarian Journalists Association of Romania (1998); Pro Minoritate (from the Government of Hungary) (1995); and Human Rights Monitor (from Human Rights Watch (1990). editor.csi@gmail.com

Natalia Yakubova, graduated from the Russian Academy of Theatre Art, in the Sciences (Theatre Studies). Since 1994 she has worked as a Research Fellow at the Department of Central European Art, State Institute of Art Studies, Moscow. yakubovanatalia@hotmail.com

Camelia Craciun studied Literature and History in Brasov, Bucharest and Budapest. She previously worked as a Teaching Assistant at the University of Brasov and as a Cultural Journalist for various publications in Romania. She is currently finishing her Ph.D. thesis on Jewish Romanian intellectual history in the interwar period and for the 2006/2007 academic year she was a Chevening Scholar at the Oriental Institute, University of Oxford. She is also a contributor to the YIVO Encyclopedia of Jews in Eastern Europe (ed. Jeffrey Edelstein and Gershon David Hundert, editors, Yivo Institute for Jewish Research and McGill University, Yale University Press, 2009). She was junior fellow in several international projects at the Collegium Budapest, New Europe College, Bucharest and CAS, Sofia, and published extensively on Romanian intellectuals in the XXth century. Since 2008, she has been teaching Eastern European Jewish Culture at the Faculty of Letters and Faculty of Foreign Languages and Literatures, University of Bucharest. She is also a board member of the Goldstein Goren Center for Jewish Studies, University of Bucharest and works for the National Institute for Research on the Romanian Holocaust Elie Wiesel, Bucharest. Her latest publication is "Monica Lovinescu at Radio Free Europe" in a volume on East-European Literary Exiles in the Twentieth Century (Gruyter Publishing House, 2009). camicr@yahoo.com

Tamás Kende, Historian, graduated in 1989 from ELTE University, Budapest (History and Russian Philology). In 1991 he was a Junior Research Fellow at the East- and Central-European research Center Hungarian Academy of Sciences (Social history of Eastern Europe 19th-20th Centuries). In 2000, he worked as Assistant Professor at Miskolc University, in 2006 as a Junior Fellow at the Institute of Political History in Budapest and has continued as a Historian-Museologist at the Ferenczy Museum (Szentendre). His publications are mostly on the social and cultural history of East- and Central Europe, cultural histories of the Communist movements, historiographies of and on the Communist parties, and the mechanism of prejudices (including a monograph titled The Blood Libel. The Mechanism of a Prejudice in East- and Central Europe, published in 1995.) kendester@gmail.com

Anna Eremeeva (Russia, Krasnodar), professor of History and Museum Studies in the Department of the University of Culture and Arts (Krasnodar, Russia). She received her doctoral degree in History at the Institute of Russian History, Russian Academy of Sciences. She has written three books: Under the Roar of Civil Storms...; Artistic Life in Southern Russia 1917-1920; Pod rokot grazhdanskikh bur', and Khudozhestvennaia zhizn' Iuga Rossii v 1917-1920 gody, and has written several dozens articles on various subjects. Her present research interests are connected to alternative culture in late socialism. She was a group leader of with the project "Alternative Culture as a Space for Communication under Socialism" (Course Development Competition, CEU, Budapest). eranna2000@mail.ru

Asim Jusic is an SJD candidate in Comparative Constitutional Law at Central European University, Budapest. He received his LLB degree from the University of Sarajevo, an MA in American Studies at the University of Heidelberg, and an LL.M degree in Comparative Constitutional Law from Central European University, Budapest. He is currently a Research Fellow at the Institute for Human Sciences, Vienna and at CEU's Centre for EU Enlargement (CENS) working on the process of Balkan countries' EU accession. Previously, he worked in a private legal practice and was a consultant for the World Bank and America's Development Foundation, and a project coordinator at the World University Service Bosnia and Herzegovina. His research interests include Comparative and International Law, Law and Economics, Law and Religion and Legal Theory. jusic_asim@ceu-budapest.edu

Irina Papkova (Budapest, Hungary) completed her Ph.D. in Comparative Politics from Georgetown University in 2006. She has taught at Georgetown, George Washington University, and the Russian State Pedagogical University of A. I. Gerzen. Currently, she is Assistant Professor at the International Relations and European Studies Department, Central European University. Her research interests include Religion and Politics, Nationalism and Ethnic Conflict, and the political implications of historical memory. Papkova's publications include "The Russian Orthodox Church and Political Party Platforms" in the Journal of Church & State and "Notes on Recent Scholarship on Orthodoxy and Politics in Russia" in the current issue of Kritika: Explorations in Russian History and Culture. She is currently completing the manuscript on Russian Orthodoxy and Post-Soviet Federal Politics, a book exploring the relationship of Religion and Politics in Post-Soviet Russia. Prior to CEU, Papkova held the position of Title VIII Research Scholar at the Kennan Institute, Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars. From March to August 2008 she held a Junior Robert Bosch Fellowship at the Institute for Human Sciences in Vienna, where she worked on a study of grass-roots fundamentalism in the Orthodox countries of Eastern Europe. papkovi@ceu.hu

Olga Zaslavskaya is a Senior Archivist at CEU OSA since 1996. She curated/organized several projects including exhibitions (Sex and Communism, Atom) and various conferences (The Revolution 1956; From Samizdat to Blogging; Alternative Culture(s) and Urban Space). She has made significant contributions towards the establishment of the International Samizdat [Research] Association Network and is involved in strengthening the promotion of alternative culture at the OSA. She has been a visiting lecturer at European Humanities University (2008) and a McArthur Fellow at the International Humanities Institute (Vienna, 2009). She is a Co-founder and Director of the research center (IACC/NAKKA, Hungary) and currently a Co-director of HESP-ReSET "Alternative Culture beyond Borders" (2007-2010). Since 2006 she has been directing the Samizdat Text Corpora Project and the Cold War Broadcasting Research Group (since 2009). Her recent publication in Poetics Today mainly deals with the difficulties of cultural and documentary heritage and problems related to its dispersion. Her current research interests include the Anthropology of Archives and Topographies of Cultural Heritage in Post-Soviet Spaces. zaslavsk@ceu.hu

Muriel Blaive is a French Historian, currently Co-coordinating "Communism Research" at the Ludwig Boltzmann Institute for European History and Public Spheres in Vienna. She is a founding member of the editorial board of Dějiny-Teorie-Kritika, Prague. She has published extensively on the subject of the Czech Republic under Communism and during the transition period in French, English, Czech and German. Recent grants awarded to Blaive include the European Research Council (2009), the Zentrum für Zeithistorische Forschung (2008) and the Institut für die Wissenschaften vom Menschen (2004). mblaive@gmail.com

Zbigniew Marcin Kowalewski worked previously as a Researcher at the Polish Academy of Sciences. He is currently the Assistant Editor in Chief of the Polish edition of Le Monde Diplomatique, while doing independent research on the history, theories and strategies of Latour, and on national liberation and revolutionary movements. In 1980-81 he was the regional leader of the trade union, Solidarność, and the national leader of the Workers' Self-management Movement. In 1982-1983, while exiled in France, he worked closely with a French movement working to support Solidarność. He has lectured and written extensively on his experiences. He has authored Rendez-nous nos usines! Solidarnosc dans le combat pour l'autogestion ouvrière (La Brèche, Paris, 1985), which was the subject of an interview with International Labor and Working-Class History (Ch. Phelps, "Solidarnosc in Lodz: An Interview with Zbigniew Marcin Kowalewski," No. 73, Spring 2008).

Katarzyna Bielińska is a PhD student at the Graduate School for Social Research at the Institute of Philosophy and Sociology of the Polish Academy of Sciences (Warsaw). Katarzyna obtained her diploma from the Political Science Department, with a specialization in Journalism (University of Silesia, Katowice). She is currently studying Philosophy at Warsaw University and working on her PhD dissertation which is dedicated to so-called praxis-philosophy in the former Yugoslavia. She has been studying and completing her research in Zagreb and Belgrade.